

This is a personal response to my email "Dream Chaser". One of national leaders, John Walker of Austin, Texas responded with the exact response copied and pasted below.

Anyone that is a "Dream Chaser" certainly must take a moment to watch the video at the bottom of this email

My apologies John for not getting permission to share your response to Dream Chaser, but I feel this message and your video needed to be shared. I think that speaks to anyone that is truly a "dream chaser".

Thank you, Ashley

Hello Ashley and I certainly like to feel that's me. (Dream Chaser)

I'm driven to be that everyday.

Also and If I may, I'd like to share the following:

I've often said, don't worry about the rain, just make the thunder. Said another way, many times what we do is influenced by what we think we can do Simply put, our goals or aspirations are limited by our expectations.

If we think we can, we can but most importantly if we think we can and are committed to do our best; THEN WE WILL!

So let us NOT be driven by what we think the result will be; let us be driven by our determination to give our best effort everyday and at every opportunity.

Let us all raise our performance by simply giving it our all!

"Don't Worry About The Rain, Just Make The Thunder!"

This video says it best:
